NASHVILLE BOY GIVES LIFE FOR HIS COUNTRY

Lieut. James Simmons Timothy Dies From Effect of Gas Attack.

Lieut. Simmons Timothy, son of Patrick Timothy, former Chattanooga resident and business man, but now a resident of Nashville, has been killed in action in France, according to a telegram received by his father. Although relatives in this city were advised some days ago that Lieut. Timothy had been "gassed," no information was received as to the extent of his injuries.

Patrick Timothy, father of the officer, is a brother of C. S. Timothy, well known dry goods merchant of Chattanooga. He came here from Nashville a few years ago, and was associated with his brothers in the Timothy Dry Goods and Carpet company until his return to Nashville a year or more ago.

Lieut. Chris Timothy, of Chattanooga, with the American expeditionary forces in France, is a cousin of Lieut. Simmons Timothy.

The gallant young officer, who died serving the country and flag that he loved, was a graduate of the Plattsburg training camp. He went across last November. His brother, Pat Timothy, Jr., is due to graduate from West Point this summer.

LEFT OHIO HOME PENNILESS TO BECOME ONE OF CHATTANOOGA'S GROCER KINGS

S. T. Dewees Fought Over City's Battlefields—Returns to Fight the Commercial Battles of Peace.

Half a century of business in Chattanooga is the record of the veteran grocery merchant, S. T. Dewees. This year Mr. Dewees is celebrating his fiftieth anniversary in this city.

He came to Chattanooga in 1865, as he says "hunting a job," and he selected this place because he had fought on her battlefields in the Civil war and had formed a liking for the town. As a very young lad, he started out from his home town, Canton, O., carrying with him the clothes he wore on his back and his railroad ticket.

Without any special qualifications and without one penny of capital he started out in life. After he reached Chattanooga, Mr. Dewees felt the most important thing to do was to get busy. He clerked in Dr. M. Block's drug store, near the river on Market street, and later in the Red Shoe store. He worked in this store from early in the morning until late at night, and as clerks' duties in those days were janitor, delivery boy and chief salesman, this clerk served his time at all of these. But while the young Ohion was working in this way he had ambitions for much higher things. He longed for a store of his own; he wanted to be the big boss; so with this in mind, he saved what little he could from his earnings and in 1874 he went into partnership with a friend and opened a grocery store on Market street next to where the Palace now stands. Here he started out with $35, which represented the entire amount he had saved, and the credit of his friends. He stayed at this place for about two years, after which he decided to go into business for himself. So he sold his interest in the store, thereby withdrawing from the partnership and opened a store under his own name on Market street between Ninth and Eighth streets on the site where Hardie & Caudle is now located. His ambition had been reached, and his next thoughts were centered entirely upon making a success out of his new enterprise. He stuck to it for several years and grew somewhat discouraged and he decided to try his luck in the manufacturing business for four or five years, but this didn't work. He was discontented and unhappy as his thoughts were not on machinery but with the little grocery store on Market street which he had given up. So with a determination to establish a life-long business he went back and repurchased his store.

This time he made a success. He moved his business across the street from the former location and went into it on a larger scale where the present store is now situated on Market street. Sixteen years ago his brother, Warren Dewees, went into partnership with him, and from that time on the two brothers have been looking forward to something newer and bigger in this line of business. About six weeks ago the veteran grocerman retired from his long established business and took over the management of what is known as the Piggly-Wiggly store at Market square.

In speaking of his idea, Mr. Dewees says that he likes it very much. He says that he believes that it is in line with Hoover's ideas. It does away with clerks, delivery and other expenses attached to the regular grocery stores. He expects to open other stores in the various counties adjacent to Hamilton in a very short time. Mr. Dewees has placed in charge of the new Piggly-Wiggly store Max V. Taucher.

The Piggly-Wiggly store is so arranged that when one goes in he has to go through the entire store before he can get out, after he once gets started. Thus the store receives its name from the way the customers have to wiggle around in order to get out.

In speaking of his military career, Mr. Dewees states that he enlisted in the army at the outbreak of the Civil war at the age of 14, and that he fought in the battles of Chickamauga and Missionary ridge.

Party of Boys Leave for Course at Camp Greenbrier

Malcolm Hooke left last night for Camp Greenbrier with a bunch of boys for a two months' stay. The party was composed of John McGee, C. C. Wells, George Henson, Robert Williams, William Long, Tarbell Patten, Henry Trotter, James McCall, James Morrison, Hubert Stagger, Junior Marr, Frederick Voigt.

Mr. Hooke will be instructor in French and Spanish, as Camp Greenbrier affords a scholastic course, as well as military training. It has been a recreation and study camp for the past twenty years, but since the war has been converted into a military training camp under the direction of a Canadian officer.

Mr. Hooke is a graduate of the University of Chattanooga class of 1912.

ADDITIONAL GERMANS COMING ON JULY 1

Although nothing official has been given out yet upon the number or exact time of arrival of the new German prisoners to be incarcerated at the prison barracks at Fort Oglethorpe, the rumor is current that about five hundred will arrive near July 1. Bearing out this conclusion is the fact that three buildings have been ordered to be completed at that time.

Capt. Yost stated Thursday that the number of buildings that will ultimately be built to house the prisoners is not known. All those that are being built at present are to the north of the old group, in which direction the stockade is being extended, also.

AUSTRIANS MAY NOT TAKE NEW OFFENSIVE

(International News Service.) Washington, June 23.—"It will be difficult for the Austrians to undertake another offensive against Italy in grand style by themselves."

This message was received at the Italian embassy this afternoon in an official cablegram from Rome, which confirms the declaration of Austrian divisions in the recent offensive. According to Italian headquarters the enemy's losses from June 15 to June 26 totaled sixteen divisions, or 200,000 men.

The cablegram reports Austrian claims of heavy Italian losses as "absurd."

FOUR OTHER AMERICANS HELD PRISONERS IN GERMANY

Washington, June 23.—Names of four additional American soldiers held prisoners at Camp Darmstadt, Germany, were announced last night by the war department. They are Corporal Royal J. Lacourciere, Meriden, Conn., and Privates Chester D. Gravatt, Ocean Grove, N. J.; Clifford N. Markle, New Haven, Conn., and Elijah Collins, Warwick, R. I.

Local Druggists now have the new Calomel tablet---Discolax

Important Discovery That Will Be Hailed With Delight
All Over the World.

After years of experimenting, Dr. G. M. Sadler, a pharmaceutical chemist of Clarksville, Tenn., has discovered how to prepare a calomel tablet that is calomel—not a substitute—and will not make you sick as calomel in its ordinary form often does.

Speaking of his discovery, Dr. Sadler said, "I have been in the drug business for over twenty years, and I believe that in that time I have had a dozen customers a day on an average ask me for calomel, and then added 'Isn't there some way I can take it that will not make me sick?'"

"I knew there was no real substitute for calomel, in spite of the many so-called substitutes sold. Yet I felt there ought to be some way that calomel could be prepared so it could be taken with comfort without losing any of its medicinal effects. So I began working on the problem. About a year ago I solved it, but to make sure I began a series of tests. I found customers enthusiastic. Now I am offering it to the public."

You may purchase Discolax at any drug store for 25 cents a package. Take a tablet at night with a swallow of water. Next day go about your duties as usual. You will not feel any sickness or inconvenience, but you will feel as bright and happy as a two-year-old. Take one tonight.—(Adv.)
